Types of Influenza Vaccine Available at Clinics:

Fluzone (Influenza Virus Vaccine)- Pediatric/Infant dose- Preservative free vaccine for children 6 months thru 35 months of age.

FluMist (Live Intranasal Influenza Virus Vaccine)- Healthy children, adolescents, and adults 2-49 years of age.

Fluzone (Influenza Virus Vaccine)- For individuals 3 years of age and older.

Fluzone High-Dose (Influenza Virus Vaccine) strengthens immune response in the 65 and older population, an age group that suffers disproportionately from influenza and its complications.

Frequently Asked Questions Regarding the 2011 Influenza Vaccine?

Is the vaccine the same as last flu season? YES

I am over 65 why should I get the High Dose vaccine instead of the traditional vaccine? Research has shown that our body responds differently to vaccinations as we age. Older individuals need a larger dosage of vaccine to get the same response or protection that a younger individual can get with a smaller dose.

Can I get influenza from a flu shot? NO! The flu shot does not contain any of the live virus so it is impossible to get influenza from the vaccine. What many people experience is the normal side effects that may occur in some people, such as: mild soreness, redness or swelling at the injection site, headache, or a low-grade fever. Vaccination is a safe and effective way to prevent influenza and its complications.
